John Elderfield's first visit to the Merzbarn in the early 1960s sparked his long period of research on Schwitters, which culminated in 1985 with the landmark Museum of Modern Art retrospective and accompanying monograph. He will talk of that first contact and its consequences, considering the Merzbarn as an architecture of bewilderment, a container of space both intimate and social. <<http://www.artinfo.com/news/story/27061/john-elderfield/>>
